

ONE WEEK

IDEA MONDAY. REVENUE THURSDAY.

The whole arc, inside one working week.

Most ideas die in the gap between having them and having something to show.

MONDAY

TEST IT BEFORE YOU BUILD IT.

Who has this problem, and do they pay for anything near it today.

An afternoon of checking beats a month of building the wrong thing.

01

Who has it

and how many of them there are 02

What they pay now

the budget already exists

03

Why it is open

what the current answer misses

T U E S D A Y

BUILD THE SMALLEST REAL VERSION.

Live, takes money, does one thing properly.

Not a waitlist. Not a landing page with a form. Something that works.

ONE PROMISE

the thing it actually does

ONE PAGE

live, on a real address

ONE PRICE

it can take money today

PUT IT IN FRONT OF FORTY PEOPLE.

Named, reachable, and picked for a reason.

Forty right people beats four hundred addresses, every time.

THURSDAY

THE FIRST ONE PAYS.

Not validation. Money, from someone you did not know on Monday.

One paying customer tells you more than a hundred conversations did.

MON → TUE → WED → THU

WHAT ACTUALLY CHANGED

YOU STOPPED RESEARCHING AND SHIPPED.

The week was never the constraint.

The constraint was how long it took to find out you were wrong.

THE WEEK

TEST, BUILD, SEND, CHARGE

DAYS: 4

TEAM: 1
