

save these

Steal my 10 Claude prompts

The ones I reuse every week. They do most of the thinking.

" Challenge my assumptions

" Give me 3 approaches with tradeoffs

" Critique this, then rewrite it better

Think sharper

1

"Break this into parts"

DECOMPOSE A PROBLEM

2

"Challenge my assumptions"

STRESS-TEST YOUR THINKING

3

"Give me 3 approaches with tradeoffs"

SEE THE OPTIONS

4

"What am I missing here?"

FIND THE BLIND SPOTS

5

"Critique this, then rewrite it better"

MAKE IT SELF-IMPROVE

Move faster

6

"Turn this into a step-by-step plan"

MAKE IT ACTIONABLE

7

"Now argue the opposite"

PLAY DEVIL'S ADVOCATE

8

"Give me the one thing that matters"

DISTILL THE NOISE

9

"Ask me 5 questions before you answer"

GET CONTEXT FIRST

10

"Explain simply, then like an expert"

LEARN AT TWO LEVELS

One prompt, better output

Claude

● PROMPT 5

YOU

"Hi, I am the founder of X and we built a tool for teams like yours. Would love 15 minutes to show you what we do." Critique this, then rewrite it better.

CLAUDE · CRITIQUE

Three problems: it opens about you, the ask is a vague meeting, and it gives the reader no reason to care.

CLAUDE · REWRITE

"Saw you just shipped Y. Most teams hit Z right after. Worth a 2-line reply on how you are handling it?" 34 words. One trigger, one question.

YOU

Why under 60 words?

CLAUDE

Short emails get read on a phone. Long ones get archived. Every extra line is a reason to skip you.

" critique, then rewrite · the prompt that fixes most drafts

10 prompts.

One save away.

" Challenge my assumptions

" Give me 3 approaches with tradeoffs

" Ask me 5 questions before you answer

COMMENT PROMPTS →

and I will send you all 10 as a copy-paste list.

