

TEN MINUTES

THE NDA THAT SAT THERE FOR A WEEK.

Read, flagged and redlined before your next call.

You were not avoiding it because it was hard. You were avoiding it because it was dull.

IT READS IT

EVERY CLAUSE. NOT THE SUMMARY.

COUNSEL reads the document you were going to skim.

The one that matters is never in the first two pages.

THE WHOLE DOC not the executive summary

THE DEFINITIONS where the trap usually lives

THE SCHEDULES the part nobody opens

IT FLAGS IT

WHAT WOULD COST YOU.

Ranked by what it actually does to you, not by clause order.

Term, liability, IP, and the exclusivity you did not notice you granted.

01

Liability

uncapped, and pointing at you

02

IP assignment

broader than the work

03

Term

auto renewing, quietly

IT REDLINES IT

WITH THE WORDS TO SEND BACK.

Not advice. The actual replacement sentence.

So the reply is a paste, not a paragraph you have to compose at 11pm.

CLAUSE

Cap it

at fees paid, 12 months

CLAUSE

Narrow IP

to the deliverable only

CLAUSE

Kill auto

renew becomes opt in tone

Reasonable

you still want the deal

YOU SEND IT

AFTER YOU READ IT.

COUNSEL drafts. It does not sign anything.

The gate matters most on the documents that bind you.

HUMAN GATE

YOU SIGN, NOT IT

WHAT ACTUALLY CHANGED

THE PAPER STOPPED BEING THE DELAY.

Deals do not die on price. They die in the inbox.

A week of silence on an NDA is a week the buyer spends cooling off.
