

5 mistakes, 5 fixes

You are using Claude wrong

 Claude

● MOST PEOPLE

YOU
write me a post about AI

CLAUDE
Sure! Here are some thoughts on AI. AI is transforming how we work and live, and businesses everywhere are racing to adopt it...

YOU
make it better

CLAUDE
Of course. Here is a more engaging version about how AI is reshaping the way we all work...

× GENERIC, EVERY SINGLE TIME

You do at least three

One-line prompts

generic, forgettable output

01

Asking for answers

you get a yes-man, not a thinker

02

Starting from scratch every chat

it forgets everything you told it

03

Shipping the first draft

you post Claude's rough cut

04

One model for everything

slow and pricey, or too shallow

05

→ Each one has a 5-second fix

Do this instead

A 4-part brief, not a one-liner task, context, standard, outcome

01

Make it challenge your thinking

it pokes holes before you ship

02

Give it context once, then build

every reply gets sharper

03

Make it critique and redo

draft 3 beats draft 1

04

Fast to draft, deep to decide

right model for the right job

05

→ Fix 1 fixes most of them

The 4-part brief

Stop writing prompts. Write a brief. Four lines, every time.

 YOUR-BRIEF.MD

1 · TASK what you want done

2 · CONTEXT what it should know first

3 · STANDARD what good looks like

4 · OUTCOME what success means

→ Most people give 1 of 4

Now watch it land

Claude

● WITH A BRIEF

YOU · THE BRIEF

Task: short post for founders on why most AI content fails. Context: I run GTM solo. Standard: punchy, no jargon. Outcome: end on a reflection, not advice.

CLAUDE

Most AI content fails because it answers a question nobody asked. The fix is not a better model, it is a better brief: tell it who it is for, what good looks like, and where to stop.

✓ USABLE, IN YOUR VOICE

Stop prompting. Start briefing.

01 Give a 4-part brief , not a one-liner

02 Make Claude challenge and redo

03 Fast to draft, deep to decide

COMMENT FIXES →

and I will send you the 4-part brief as a copy-paste template.

